CHRONOLOGY

Created a solo for Atonal Festival, West Berlin, Germany.

Created a benefit collaborative performance for an arts exhibition at Deutsche Oper Berlin.

1979 – 1984

Lived between Berlin and New York and created different solo dances for events in both cities.

While in New York, spent much time around COLAB – a collaborative artist group presenting experimental exhibitions in unconventional venues – to lean. In Berlin, spent much time with Fabrik Rakete --- photographer and rock and roll manager Jim Rakete's creative laboratory.

Worked for Deutsche Oper Berlin as corps de ballet. Met William Forsythe.

1992–93

Received the Wexner Center Residency Award establishing pretty ugly dance company and their North American tour of 1993

In 1992, Amanda Miller founded Pretty Ugly dance company. The artistic roots run toward classical dance whose forms and patterns are discernible in the company's works; forms and patterns that are continuously being rebuilt and reshaped by the company's artistic director, Amanda Miller. She is constantly searching for new possibilities, constructing bridges between different eras and styles, and inventing hybrid forms of movement. Literacy and artistic influences, along with an intensive give and take with musical forms, enrich the dancers' work and facilitate the search for progressive representations and demonstrations of dance.

Premiered Night By Itself on a program that included three other dances: St. Nick, Arto's Books and Pretty Ugly

Pretty Ugly dance company embarked on U.S. tour: Ontario, Canada; Toronto, Canada; Chicago, IL; Lawrence, KS; Minneapolis, MN; Durham, NC; Columbus, OH; Pittsburgh, PA; Seattle, WA.

Pretty Ugly dance company toured to Paris and received all three honors and prizes at Rencontres Chorégraphiques International de Bagnolet for Choreography, Performers, and the contemporary dance work Night by Itself.

Received Bonnie Bird Choreography Fund Award, Laban Center, London, England. European tour: Belgium; England; Germany; Holland; Italy; Japan; Russia; Switzerland.

1994

Pretty Ugly conceived and created Two Pears— the first full length evening from pretty ugly dance company. Creation took place with residencies in Korzo Theater, Amsterdam and Ballett Frankfurt. Premiered at Frankfurt Schauspielhaus toured Leuven, Brussels, Belgium; Prague, Czech Republic; Denmark; London, England; Frankfurt, Nuremburg, Germany; Budapest, Hungary; Japan; Italy; Sweden; Geneva, Switzerland.

2000

Founded yummydance — a women's collaborative improvisational company in Matsuyama, Japan

2004

Founded Art for Tibet—a charitable organization to help people and projects in Tibet and India.

SELECTED PRESS

Time Out magazine

"... Miller is one of today's most musically sensitive choreographers. Her finely nuanced movement, inspired partly by mathematics and the circular structure of mandalas, is mercifully bereft of modern ballet's typical affections: a slick surface and no substance."

Edith Boxberger Rhein Main Profil

"She juxtaposes the classic ideal of balanced bodies with a game on the edge of equilibrium. She is searching for alternatives – another use of the bodies another view of the world."

The Times, John Percival

"Miller's success lies in making this simple structure continuously gripping, both for the quality and ingenuity of the movement, and for the sense within it of a search for security and support. The work gives the London Contemporary Dance Theatre a welcome taste of new choreographic developments on the European mainland, but is essentially a highly individual creation, not just a taken representation of a trend."

Berliner Morgenpost

“Brutally ripping, ironical, referential, witty, rebellious, and in a cheeky way fragmentary (bits and pieces).”

<https://vimeo.com/70137710> "Spaces of Otherness" a documentary from Michael Maurissens: the process and creation of "CROP" with Amanda K. Miller and dancers of Ballett am Rhein

Rotterdams Dagblad

“The unpredictability with which Amanda Miller infuses her basis of traditional dance material with details that are completely her own makes the evening mysterious and surprising. The style is always completely relaxed and demonstrated an enormous freedom of movement and power and is never unformed or noncommittal.”
